

GOLDEN WEALTH IN CALIFORNIA

Engineer T. P. Rigney Gives Fine Description of Placer County's Gold.

ACQUIRES GOOD GROUND

CLOSE TO WHERE NIXON-WINGFIELD BONANZA IS LOCATED.

T. P. Rigney, the well known mining engineer of this city, has returned from California, where he has been for some time past investigating mining properties and power projects in the interests of eastern investors. While absent he made a trip into the Forest Hill section of Placer county and has the following to say of that district and of the strike lately made on the property of Nixon and Wingfield, and near which he secured valuable ground.

Placer County is Rich.

Ever since gold was discovered in the mill race at Coloma, Placer county has been classed as one of the leading mining counties of California. From the summit of the Sierra Nevada mountains, more than 8,000 feet above sea level, it extends westerly a distance of sixty miles to within twelve miles of Sacramento with an elevation of less than 100 feet. To the east it extends to the Nevada line, a distance of about fifteen miles. Its width north and south ranges from seven to twenty-five miles, and it extends from the Bear river on the north to the middle fork of the American river on the south. The Southern Pacific railroad traverses the entire length of the northern portion of the county, thereby affording ample transportation facilities, and with good wagon roads that lead out from the various stations along the line access to any portion of the county can be easily and quickly made.

Evidences of Erosion.

The American river with its several branches traverses the county from north to south, and through erosion has cut various channels to great depths, in some places 1,000 feet below the closely adjacent country. Placer county at one time was heavily covered with a volcanic capping, but erosion has been so great since then that but little remains of this great flow. In the early '60s attention was first directed to the rich placer deposits that were found on the distance in various sections of the county. After these rich placers were exhausted, but not before many millions were produced, attention was directed to the auriferous gravels of the ancient river channels.

Gold in Ancient River Beds.

These rich deposits far antedate the placer deposits, wherein the process of disintegration and concentration of the latter is even going on today. It is found that the beds of these ancient rivers channels are nearly 1,000 feet above the present channels of the principal streams. Erosion has removed a great portion of the ancient channels, but it is found that the channels of the principal streams, these channels and the gravel contents still remain intact. These deposits are opened up, primarily, from one to four miles in length. The production in the county from this source of mining, which is known as drift mining, is approximately $70,000,000. It has been estimated by those who have given the length of ancient river channels remaining unworked in Placer county will amount to 20 miles. It will be seen from this that the field of operation in drift mining still remains large.

Gold-Bearing Lodes.

In all the years that placer and drift mining have been carried on but very little attention has been accorded quartz mining. While some attention has been given these veins and ledges of gold-bearing quartz, the amount of development is very limited. From the fact that the source of these large deposits of rich gravels is due to the disintegration and concentration of the immensurable strings, veins and ledges traversing the country, it is evident it presents an inviting field for the prospector and capitalist to investigate.

The Nixon-Wingfield Strike.

The predominating rocks in the district are slates, serpyentine shales and several varieties of porphyritic rocks. The ore opened up on the Nixon-Wingfield property lies in contact between a slate hanging wall and a serpentine foot wall. The rich ore is from six to twelve inches thick and lies against the foot wall above a body of hematite several feet thick. This iron contains but little value. The contact dips to the east at an angle of about 25 degrees. Its trend is about N. 18 degrees W. Mr. Wingfield on his last trip out to San Francisco took with him between $20,000 and $30,000 in fine gold and nuggets. If the present showing will hold out with further development it will make a great mine. Since the story of the strike has come out many prospectors and investors have gotten in on the surrounding territory, with the result that much good looking rock is coming in daily.

Rigney Gets Property.

Mr. Rigney, while there, secured for himself and associates 120 acres of the adjacent ground, lying immediately north of the Nixon-Wingfield property. The scene of the strike is about two miles southeast of Forest Hill, in Bath mining district, Placer county, California. Forest Hill affords a good hotel, two drug stores, four or five general merchandise and supply stores, meat shop, restaurant, half-dozen saloons, blacksmith shop, postoffice and outside telephone and telegraph service. In the early days it boasted of several thousand inhabitants.

PIPE LINE FROM WARD MOUNTAIN

Giroux Concentrator at Ely Will Be Provided With Adequate Supply of Water.

(Special to The Herald.)

Ely, Nev., Oct. 13.—It was learned here yesterday that during his recent visit to the district, Joseph L. Giroux, president of the Giroux Copper company, had made arrangements to run a pipe line from Ward mountain to the mines at Kimberly, to supply the Giroux concentrator with an adequate flow of water for all general purposes.

President Giroux announced at that time that it was the hope of the company to secure all the water that would be needed within the shaft had been sunk an additional 150 feet. That these hopes may be realized is the belief of the management of the property, by reason that the miners have within the last few days tapped an exceptionally heavy flow, though they had gone but a few feet deeper than they were when President Giroux inspected the property. It is expected that the pipe line from Ward mountain, work on which has already been commenced, will be completed within the next six weeks. As soon as the concentrator has been started, more than 100,000 bushels of water will be available for the mines.

The statements that have been sent out of the camp to the effect that miners are leaving in large numbers are not borne out by the facts. The Nevada Consolidated and the Cumberland Ely are both in need of men, and there are no idle miners in the district. The Bear river for miles are being posted in the cafe and hotel windows about the camp. Only white men and men of thorough experience are desired.

At the Veteran, owned by the Nevada Consolidated, the management is driving a shaft that will be the most complete and perfect in the state when completed. This shaft is eight feet by twenty-four feet in size, and will be used as the principal hoist for all of the Veteran properties.

The shaft has now been driven to a point where the first sets of timbers can be placed and this work is now being done. For the first one hundred feet, a windlass and whim will be used to hoist, but after that depth has been attained, a steel galloway frame, similar to that on the Star Pointer, will be installed. In order to facilitate the completion of this shaft, an upraise is being forced forward as rapidly as possible. As many men as can be safely crowded into the work are being used.

The ore line of the Nevada Northern railroad, designed to convey the ores from the mines at Kimberly to the smelter at McGill, is almost completed. Chief Engineer A. Judell is forcing this work forward as rapidly as possible, working three shifts of men. The work at night is carried on under the glare of arc lights and search lights. The steam shovels are working at three points along the line, and the road will be ready for use within the next two weeks.

Track has been laid to a point beyond Copper Flat, and at the end of two square miles have been built to accommodate the steam shovels that are used in stripping the ore from the hillside. The deposits of copper ore that lie near the surface of the Veteran property. When these shovels have reached the ore, the ore will be loaded direct to the cars, and thence transported to the smelters. The scene at the property is one of the greatest activity in the district.

The tracks of the ore line will be completed at the smelter end, and will enter the concentrator within the next ten days. Seventy-five pound rails are being used throughout on the line, and the ballasting is of the most permanent character. The road is being built to withstand the wear and tear of the passage of forty-eight heavy ore trains in each direction daily.

The Nevada Northern has ordered nine powerful locomotives from the factory in the east, and these are expected to arrive here within the next few days. They will be used in the ore line.

It is expected that the new 1,000-horse power hoist, the largest in the state, which was ordered several months ago from Denver, will be delivered here within the next few days. This hoist has a lifting capacity of eight tons per trip, it will be installed in the Veteran property, and the main shaft weighs five tons. Paul B. Placer, formerly of A. Placer, formerly of Salt Lake, who was injured a short time ago, while employed as a switchman at Copper Flat, has recovered. It was at first thought that his injuries would prove serious. The young man was thrown from his train, falling on the rails while the train was in motion. By rare presence of mind he rolled from the track and escaped the wheels. He was seriously bruised, and it was thought that he had suffered internal injuries.

WATKINS MADE A STAKE OUT OF MIZPAH STRIKE

The story of Sam Watkins, who made the sensational strike on the Mizpah group, at Fairview, Nevada, which was sold last week for $125,000, epitomizes the opportunities which are offered by this wonderful camp in return for a little effort. Watkins was without funds a month ago. He had been here in the early days, and had made some money. But money doesn't stick very well in the hands of the average prospector, and Watkins is a prospector.

Four weeks ago he was broke. He went to Otto Steinheimer who, with his brother, Frank, and William Ringer, owned the Mizpah group, at that time deemed one of the most unpromising properties in the entire district. Watkins made these men a proposition. He would prospect Mizpah for them provided they would stake him. If he succeeded in finding $400,000 in the place, he was to have a one-fourth interest in the property. His proposal was accepted, and Watkins set about his task. He prospected the Mizpah group thoroughly, and a little more than two weeks ago set to work in earnest at the point where his judgment told him the ore should be found.

Day by day he worked. From the outset the showings were good, but as he went deeper the rock began to take on a better and better appearance. Here again Watkins was "up against it." He knew he was coming into ore, but he had no way of determining its value, and his contract with Steinheimer and Ringer provided that he should show ore that would assay $40 to the ton.

In his dilemma Watkins went to a local assayer, a man named Pierce, and made him a proposition. "I've got a chance to get a fourth of this property if I can show $40 ore in place. I've got ore, but I've got to get it assayed, and I'm broke. If you'll run my samples for me, I'll give you one-third interest in my part of the property. That'll be a treaty for you. Will you gamble with me on that?" Pierce said he'd gamble. Altogether he made 100 assays from samples brought in by Watkins, who was slowly sinking his shaft. A little more than a week ago the camp was electrified by the news that Watkins had found $28 ore.

On Thursday the Mizpah group was sold for $125,000. Watkins' share being $31,250, of which he had to give Pierce $10,416, leaving him net as $20,833.

When it is remembered that this sum comes to Watkins as pay for one month's work, and to Pierce for making 100 assays, usually charged for at the rate of $1 each, the two men stand forth as quick fortune makers.

But then they are not exceptions to the rule among those who have helped to make Fairview famous. Such fortunes are made there in short order, and it is because the performances of the camp have been in thorough accord with the promise that men of the type of Watkins, who have the nerve to back their judgment with their brains, are attracted to the richest oil field in the west. Fairview is the camp with the ore, and they have no hesitation in linking their enterprise with the camp.

"ROBBER'S ROOST" COUNTRY FULL OF OIL

Jasper Thomason has just returned to his home in Santa Monica, Cal., after an exploration trip through the newly discovered oil fields of Wayne county, Utah. Mr. Thomason has been through the widest unsurveyed section of the United States, and he is free in the expression of his belief that this will prove the richest oil field in the west. With him he brought specimens of oil sands and oil rock and bottles of crude oil. He has been made up of the rocks or deposited in small pools. These specimens, while they have not as yet been assayed, have every indication of being the real thing. The oil sand is exposed for a distance of more than seventy feet, and from it the oil is trickling down the sides of the deep and precipitous canon.

There are exposures for a distance of a mile and a half, and in the opinion of the geologists the exploring party, this vast region will supply the western country with oil of a high grade for many years.

The nearest railroad station is Green River, sixty miles distant, on the Denver & Rio Grande railway. A large number of locations have been made, but as yet no wells have been sunk. There is not even a rig in the country, but development is being made. The oil sand is exposed in what is known as the "Robbers' Roost" country, which has never been prospected. The first tip relative to the oil sands and oil rock was given by a deputy from the United States marshal's office at Salt Lake City. He made a trip into that country on the lookout for high waymen wanted by the government and who were believed to be hiding in the wilderness. He stumbled across the new oil fields.

JESSE KNIGHT BUYING UP BULLION-BECK STOCK

It is generally understood that during the past few weeks Jesse Knight has been buying up the stock of the Bullion-Beck Mining company and recently a report has gained circulation that he has now secured enough stock to control the company's affairs, says the Kureka Reporter. Mr. Knight, who is a resident of Salt Lake City, is a man of considerable means and is believed to be in the oil business. He has been buying up the stock of the Bullion-Beck Mining company, which is a small company, and is believed to be in the oil business. He has been buying up the stock of the Bullion-Beck Mining company, which is a small company, and is believed to be in the oil business.

Mr. Knight is heavily interested in the new mine now being erected in Tintic and he could make a nice job of money out of the low grade ore of the Beck by turning it over to the smelter and this would be the best way to make money. ### TINTIC STANDARD CLOSING PROPERTY DEALS

Provo, Oct. 13.—The Copper Queen, Canon Queen Nos. 2, 3 and 4, mining claims, has been conveyed to the Tintic Standard Mining company by the R. & S. Promotion company for a consideration of $90,000. The property is located in Tintic. The R. & S. Promotion company has also assigned for the sum of $10,000 to the Tintic Standard Mining company a number of options held on Tintic mining property from John Bestelmeyer, George Haverkamp et al.

Joseph A. Harris, formerly of this city, but now mining in Vermining, Bodle and Aurora, is in the city visiting relatives. Mr. Harris speaks highly of the country, and the prospects for its mineral production. Aurora, especially, which was a big camp in the early '90s, is now taking on new life. The Tintic power, which will soon be supplied from California, the camp will boom as it did fifty years ago when millions were taken out.

RICH STRIKE IN THE LEHI-TINTIC

Eighteen Inches of High-Grade Sand Carbonates in Tunnel Workings.

(Special to The Herald.)

Lehi, Oct. 13.—The Lehi-Tintic Mining company, operating in North Tintic, has made an important strike in the south drift being run from the Empire tunnel. Theo. Nichols, the superintendent, came in last week with samples of fine looking sand carbonate ore which required no assay to prove its high grade value. He stated that there was an eighteen-inch vein widening as work progressed. It will be remembered that E. P. Jennings, the mining expert, made a report on this property a few months ago and recommended that a drift be run to the south on the big fissure to a point where it was intersected by what is known as the Gold Blossom fissure. Here he stated, a body of ore should be encountered which might extend for a considerable distance each way from the junction.

The junction of the two fissures is about seventy-five feet from the end of the Empire tunnel so that the encountering of the ore when the drift is run to this distance was reached comes as a happy surprise to the stockholders and indicates that the ore should be both large and of high grade stuff.

Several of the Salt Lake officials will visit the mine in a few days with automobiles to investigate the strike, and after the 16th inst. will increase the working force from two to three shifts, so that the objective point may be reached soon as possible.

FINISHING INSTALLATION OF ELECTRIC MACHINERY

O. H. Sonne, general manager of the Malachite, departed Thursday last for Reno to purchase some parts for the electrical equipment at the mine, says the Vermining Times. As soon as the parts have been procured and put in place, the Malachite will witness the inauguration of the most complete campaign of development in the history of the mine.

The Malachite plant is one of the most compact and up-to-date in the west, considering its size. The mine itself is showing up strong with development and is even now one of the district's premier establishments.

Mr. Sonne is enthusiastic concerning the possibilities of the Malachite. The character of the ore is such that it is almost free milling, while it occurs in bodies of an extensive nature.
